ber 26.—Saturday last was a red-letter day with the Democracy of this section, for, "Democratic Influence Club."

New York, Soptember 27.—Mrs. Mary Frost Ormsby called upon Campaign-Chairman Don M. Dickinson at the national Democratic headquarters to-day and secured endorsement for the club of which she is president, which was organized under the name of the Frances Cleveland Influence Club. It is now to be known as the Democratic Influence Club. It will be remembered that a letter bearing Mrs. Ormsby's name was sent to Mrs. Cleveland announcing the formation of the club. Mr. Cleveland replied to the letter deprecating such use of his wife's name. Mrs. Ormsoy now denies that she wrote to Mrs. Cleveland, and asserts that the signature to the letter was a forgery by a man whose notwithstanding the inadequate notice given out that Hon. R. H. Cardwell had accepted the invitation of the club to speak at this point, the largest crowd that has been seen in the county for years, aside from the court-green, assembled from far and near to hear this distinguished and honored son of Virginia discuss the vital and all-absorbing questions at issue in this the most important campaign either before or since the war. For quite two hours Speaker Cardwell held an attentive, delighted, and applanding audience spell-bound, as it were, by his masterly exposure of Republican maladministration of the government; its corrupt and extravagant expenditure of public funds; its ruthless imposition and exaction of unnecessary and enormously burdensome taxation, and its high-handed and wicked attempt to force and foster the injuitous force bill and all its damnable outgrowth on an unwilling and indignant people. to the letter was a forgery by a man whose name she refuses to give at present.

McKinley Attacks Harter.

CLEVELAND, O., September 27.—Governor McKinley spoke this afternoon at Wellington, O., to a mass-meeting of between 4,000 and 5,000 Republicans. He devoted himself principally to the two candidates in the Fourteenth Congressional District—Congressman M. D. Harter (Democrat) and E. G. Johnson (Republican). He attacked Harter's well-known and radical tarif-reform principles in a speech of considerable length. In dealing with the second of these so-called standard-bearers, General James G. Field, although but a few days previously he was reported in the Atlanta Constitution to have come out flat-footed for the force bill, the speaker was somewhat more lenient, out of compassion, perhaps, for the honored part of him—the leg that, stricken in the Lost Cause, rests quietly, it may be, but more likely, in the opinion of the writer, restlessly itching to throw off the superincumbent earth in order to adminis-ter a few wholosome kicks to the baser superficulment earth in order to adminis-ter n few wholesome kicks to the baser part remaining in the flesh and that now seeks to subvert our form of government and relegate the people of his section, at least, to all the horrors of the reconstruc-

There were present Mr. S. V. Southall, of Charlottesville, United States Senator Eppa Hunton, and Colonel Robert Beverley, and a joint debate was arranged to be held in the court-house. Mr. Southall (Democrat) led off in an hour-and-a-half speech, in which Republican principles were scored in scathing terms.

paled into insignificance. Hats went up in all parts of the crowd, and the spontaneous response must have convinced Weaver that he and his doctrine will find no lodging-place in the hearts of our people. The crowd was orderly, and no disrespect shown any one. At the conclusion of Weaver's remarks not a cheer was given, not a sound was heard. James H. Pou speaks here to-night.

IN A CORNER. The speaker showed the fallacy of Beverley's reasoning throughout, and pushed the Colonel into a corner by asking him whether he would rather see Gleveland or whether he would rather see Cleveland or Harrison elected in November, and then asking whether Beverley thought Weaver could obtain the electoral vote of Virginia. Beverley answered that he preferred Cleveland to Harrison, and did not reply to the other question. Hunton then asked Beverly if he was not ashamed to request the people of Nelson to vote for a violent South-hater, who desired to pass a law giving the Union soldiers of the North about $357,000,000 in addition to the enormous amount of pensions already going into the pockets of the northern soldiers? He aspired to the office of Secretary of Agriculture under Cleveland, and since Cleveland's time to the office of Commissioner of Agriculture. He now aspires to the office of elector for Virginia, and he is right in saying he will never obtain it. Besides this he desired the nomination for Governor and since his failure to secure this he has slid further and further from Democracy, until he has finally landed into the People's party alongside of Weaver." Christianshurg, Va., September 27.—A large crowd was in attendance to-day, and as soon as the Judge adjourned his court the people flocked there to hear the crators of the day. Mr. J. Thompson Brown, district elector, led off in a speech replete with good, hard sense, and as a farmer spoke to farmers. Next came Farmer Edmunds, who in a half-hour speech, marked by great earnestness and good humor, touched forcibly on the main issue of the canvass. Hs audience was raised to a high pitch of enthusiasm, and as he declared to the people that he had been faithful to his trust the demonstration that greeted him attested its truth. His speech was a fitting prejude to the masterly effort of the Hon. J. Randolph Tucker, who for two hours and fifteen minutes held the undivided attention of his hearers. This is the first time Mr. Tucker has ever spoken at this place, and while his reputation has preceded him, no one went away disappointed. On all sides the highest praise was given to him, and the universal sentiment is that great good was done. The canvass is now fairly on. Edmunds has eight appointments in this county, and from this time to the day of election every effort will be made to rouse the people to the importance of the issues involved in this campaign.

GRAND RALLY IN CUMBERLAND. A Joint Discussion in Which the Third-Party Speakers Are Badly Beaten.

[Correspondence of the Richmond Discatch.]
Commerciant, Va. September 26.—A grand and glorions Democratic rally took place at Cumberland Courthouse to-day.
The Cartersville Democratic Club, 150
strong, came up on horseback, in buggies,
and carriages as an escort to the Hop. H.
St. George Tucker, Democratic candidate for Congress. The procession was over a haif mile long, headed by a band of music for the occasion. The club was handsomely attired and did credit to themselves and honor to the Democratic party. They were received at the court-house by one of the largest Democratic gatherings ever witnessed in the history of the county.

A joint discussion was effected as follows—namely: The Hon. Camm Patteson to lend off in a speech of an hour; Mr.
Franklin, the Republican candidate for Congress, to toply in a speech of an hour;
Mr. Pierson, editor of the Virginia Sus, representing the Third party, to follow in a speech of an hour, and the Hon. H. St.
Grouge Tucker, Democratic candidate for Congress, to close. Cartain Patteson spoke in a telling and forcible manner, declaring that the issues in this campaign mans of more importance than any since Party Speakers Are Badly Beaten.

1889. He reviewed the history of the Republican party since the war, showing up their infamous course, and how the Democrats had striven to reform the affairs of the government and equitably administer them for the good of the whole people.

the government and equitably administer them for the good of the whole people.

THIRD-PART TALK.

Mr. Franklin, the Republican candidate for Congress, replied in a better speech than is usually heard from that party. Then came the imported Mr. Pierson, editor of the Virginia San and representative of the Third party. The hour allotted to him was spent in abusing the Democratic party and relating a story of a British bronze lion wagging his tail. He did not touch the great issues that are agitating the minds of the people of this great government; nor could hatell where the money was to come from to buy the railroads of the United States.

Next came the Hon. H. St. George Tucker, the Democratic candidate for Congress. Words fail to do justice to the great speech made by this gentleman. A complete ovation was given him. I never in all my life heard such a hurrah and applause. He literally flayed Messrs. Franklin and Pierson, especially Mr. Pierson, as he made a direct assault on the Democratic party.

B. W. L. Blanton, district chairman, is organizing a big club known as the Randoloh District Democratic Club. They propose to shake hands with the Cartersville club at the next Cumberland court. The game was one-sided from the very opening and the Forest-Hill club won an easy victory. The home team started out with Merchant in the box, but before the game had ended Beicher, Taylor, and Foster had huried the sphere for the Manchester players.

The game was characterized by the most miserable playing that has ever been seen on a local diamond. When it had ended and Manager Dan Matthews, of the Forest-Hill team, went up to receive the spoils from the captain of the Richmond team he was informed that the contest was on credit, as the Richmond boys failed to bring the purse ($40) with them. The Freestaters had therefore to content themselves with the gate receipts, which were not sufficient to purchase a first-class house and lot, as the bleacheries were not uncomfortably packed.
